DEDICATION

No attempt to review the progress of Appalachian State Teachers College would be complete without an effort to pay tribute to MISS JENNIE TODD. Because her first thought has always been of others—be it the lowliest freshman or the highest senior; because where duty stops, she has continued beyond unselfishly and sympathetically; and because she has carved a place in the hearts of the students which time cannot erase—

we are proud to dedicate the nineteen forty-one

RHODODENDRON.

FOREWORD

THE 1941 RHODODENDRON is your book. Therefore we have tried to make it what you would want most, a picture story of the present for the album of the future. We hope that it will prove a useful record of names and faces, an encyclopedia of 1941. We hope, too, that as you turn its pages you will recapture those hours that you most joyfully remember and that it will keep ever present for you friends too dear to be forgotten.

Realizing that education was a duty of the State, the Dougherty brothers decided to ask the legislature to make their Academy a state-supported school. More important, they planned to establish an institution devoted to the task of training teachers. Then on a Sunday afternoon in 1903, four years after the founding of Watauga Academy, B. B. Dougherty, Captain

Finally, Appalachian has for its President the man who has guided it from infancy to the present. In a very real sense Appalachian is a measure of his greatness. But that is not all: he is the apostle of equalization of public school support and of democracy in education in the State. The present state-wide school
